

READER'S RIGHTS

You have a right to:

Open access to the library on a consistent basis for both personal and academic purposes

Friendly assistance from the library staff in locating materials of personal and academic interest

Read what you want,
for as long as you want,
for as many times as you want,
however, whenever, and wherever you want! 😊

Examine a diverse selection of materials that represent all different points of views and experiences about a topic, idea, event, issue, etc.

Select materials based on your OWN criteria, not someone else's, free from judgment and questions

A first-class library collection with materials that represent the interests, needs and diversity of the school community

Voice your opinion and participate in an advisory board to help guide improvements to the library collection, programs and physical space

Sources on the back →

Created by Shawn Lees-Carr

Dec. 5, 2010

Sources:

American Library Association Library Bill of Rights

<http://www.ala.org/ala/issuesadvocacy/intfreedom/librarybill/lbor.pdf>

American Library Association Freedom to Read Statement

<http://www.ala.org/ala/aboutala/offices/oif/statementspols/ftrstatement/freedomreadstatement.cfm>

American Library Association Freedom to View

<http://www.ala.org/ala/aboutala/offices/oif/statementspols/ftvstatement/freedomviewstatement.cfm>

Frederick County Public Library Bill of Rights

http://www.fcpl.org/information/general/bill_of_rights.html

A Reluctant Reader's Bill of Rights (ALSC blog)

<http://www.alsc.ala.org/blog/?p=572>